Profile

I am a motivated and adaptable Business and Information Technology student with a passion for leveraging technology to solve real-world challenges. Through my academic journey and hands-on projects, I have developed a strong understanding of the role of technology in driving business insights. My experiences in project development, problem-solving, and volunteer work have shaped me into a well-rounded individual eager to contribute, grow, and always ready to learn in a professional setting. I am excited to begin my career and explore opportunities that align with my interests in technology and innovation.
